

Doug McChesney

Doug McChesney came out of retirement to help with this year's drought. Prior to retiring, Mr. McChesney was a Section Manager with the Washington Department of Ecology's Water Resources Program. He worked on such issues as drought, municipal water supply, and the ground water exemption. A hydrogeologist by training, he received his education at San Diego State College and The Evergreen State College. Mr. McChesney worked for Ecology for over 25 years and has experience in virtually all facets of water management in Washington.
